Practical Training for People in Practice

Training portfolio & frequently asked questions

➤ What training does ESTD UK offer?

ESTD UK has a developing programme of courses from introductory to more experienced levels. We have a policy of working in partnership with experts by experience and with other organisations. You can find our training policy, training portfolio, a summary of courses delivered over the last year and current courses on offer on the UK page of the ESTD website (www.estd.org).

➤ I do not yet work with trauma and dissociation but feel this is likely to be an issue for my client group and would like to raise my awareness of this area of work.

An excellent starting place is Understanding Dissociation run by experts by experience from First Person Plural . This course is highly rated by participants. For details of current dates and venues see ESTD website, the First Person Plural website (www.firstpersonplural.co.uk) or contact Kathryn Livingston (fpp@firstpersonplural.org.uk)

You can also consider Dissociative processes and the therapeutic use of self: Part 1 . See the UK page of the ESTD website or contact the trainer, Val Wosket for details (v.wosket@btinternet.com)

ISSTD also run an introductory seminar package on complex PTSD which can be undertaken on line or delivered in the UK according to demand. For details see the ISSTD website (www.isst-d.org).

➤ I have encountered a client with a dissociative condition for the first time and need some training in how best to work with them.

Any or all of the 3 courses mentioned above would be a good starting place.

Supporting Survivors who have Dissociative Identity Disorder is an additional course designed by First Person Plural primarily for non-clinical professional supporters. Clinicians too will find it helpful in developing their understanding of dissociative crises from an expert-by-experience perspective. It is more practical and experiential than Understanding Dissociation (above) and assumes some basic knowledge about dissociation and the dissociative spectrum. See ESTD or FPP website for details or contact Kathryn Livingston (fpp@firstpersonplural.org.uk)

You can also consider Dissociative processes and the therapeutic use of self: Part 2. See website or contact the trainer, Val Wosket for details (v.wosket@btinternet.com)

ISSTD also run a standard level seminar package which can be undertaken on line or delivered in the UK according to demand. For details see the ISSTD website (www.isst-d.org)

➤ I already work with dissociative clients and would like to extend my knowledge and skills.

Understanding Dissociation run by First Person Plural is helpful at all levels of knowledge and experience.

Other relevant courses are

- Affect regulation and the use of self (2 x 2 day blocks) run by Remy Aquarone (see ESTD UK webpage for current timetable).
- Working with dissociation: An attachment-based approach designed by Sue Richardson. Contact Sue for further details (SueRichardson1@compuserve.com)
- ISSTD run an advanced seminar package which can be undertaken on line or delivered in the UK according to demand. For details see the ISSTD website (www.isst-d.org)

➤ I work with traumatised children and adolescents. What is there for me and their carers?

An ISSTD seminar package Working with dissociative children and adolescents and other related courses are run by Renee Marks on a regular basis. See the ISSTD website or contact Renee for details (reneemarks@yahoo.co.uk)

You would also find Understanding Dissociation run by First Person Plural helpful.

- I am a survivor myself looking for information about and insight into dissociation

Understanding Dissociation run by First Person Plural (see above) is both designed for and highly recommended for your needs.

- I am a partner or other carer looking for information about and insight into dissociation

Understanding Dissociation run by First Person Plural (see above) is both designed for and highly recommended for your needs.

Supporting Survivors who have Dissociative Identity Disorder has been designed by First Person Plural primarily for non-clinical professional supporters but may also be useful for some family/friends/informal carers. See above for details.

- I am a supervisor who needs to understand dissociative clients seen by my supervisees

Understanding Dissociation run by experts by experience from First Person Plural is an excellent starting place. You can also consider Dissociative processes and the therapeutic use of self: Parts 1 and 2.

The ISSTD introductory seminar package on complex PTSD will provide you with additional theoretical foundations. See above to source details of these courses.

A workshop on the supervision of complex trauma and dissociation facilitated by Sue Richardson is available according to demand.
(SueRichardson1@compuserve.com)

- Some of these courses interest me but there is not quite the right fit with my needs and those of my colleagues and organisation.

There are other courses (e.g. on assessment) in the ESTD UK training portfolio which can be adapted to meet your needs and ESTD UK training group is always interested in developing new courses - contact the ESTD UK Training Coordinator, Sue Richardson (details below).

- I am a member of an organisation or team working with clients who may have experienced trauma and dissociation and am interested in arranging in-house training for myself and colleagues.

Several of the above mentioned courses can be provided as in-house training. Also speakers may be arranged to deliver awareness-raising and other short presentations at your own training and conference events. Contact the ESTD UK Training Coordinator, Sue Richardson (details below), or the named trainers to discuss your needs.

Proposed new developments

Working with dissociation: An attachment-based approach

Trainer: Sue Richardson. Proposed venue: York. Projected starting date: October 2010. This course is intended for participants with some working knowledge and experience of working with dissociation who can bring case material for discussion. Prior knowledge of attachment theory is not necessary. Contact Sue for further details (SueRichardson1@compuserve.com)

CPD seminar series

Aim: to explore topics of interest to participants and provide space for discussion of clinical issues. Proposed venue & date: York, 2010.

To discuss any of the trainings mentioned above, please contact the named trainers or the ESTD UK Training Co-ordinator, Sue Richardson SueRichardson1@compuserve.com
